

SHED SESSIONS AT THE SPADY BRINGS LIVE MUSIC TO THE SET OF DELRAY BEACH

New concert series begins in September, featuring the new Spady House Band

Delray Beach, Fla. – August 16, 2016 – So just what is a Shed Session, and why is one coming to The Spady Cultural Heritage Museum in September?

In major music cities, such as Baltimore, New York, Los Angeles and Atlanta, live music jam sessions, led by a gifted drummer, are taking ahold. Call it a throwback to the days when live music ruled, and DJs were not concert headliners. The jamming would take place in the proverbial ‘shed,’ or any other intimate space, where enthusiasts could literally feel the music.

Also key to a good shed session is improvisation. Other musicians are welcomed to sit in with the house band, and riff off the drummer’s beat.

At the Spady Museum, Musical Director Tovah Lovely Shed will be on drums, as part of the new Spady House Band, with MC Ian Caven, Jimmy Copeland and Beto Rubinell rounding out the sound. Other musicians are welcomed for free; the general public admission is $10 per person, cash at the door. The first SHED SESSION at the Spady will be held Wednesday, September 14 from 8-11 p.m.

“We’ve always incorporated cultural music into our programs, from the R&B greats and drum lines at the Spady Living Heritage Festival to the recent live music in our backyard at FunkSway,” said Museum Director Charlene Jones. “With SHED SESSIONS, we hope to gather music-lovers who want to hear who’s next in South Florida. We want this series to build a real cult following.”

Vocalists and lyricists are also encouraged to come. SHED SESSIONS at The Spady promises to bring an original, modern sound to The Set of Delray Beach.

About the Spady Museum:

Located at 170 NW Fifth Avenue in Delray Beach, the Spady Cultural Heritage Museum is the only museum in Palm Beach County dedicated to sharing the African, Haitian- and Caribbean-American cultural contributions to Florida and the U.S. Museum Hours: 11 a.m. - 4 p.m., Tuesday – Saturday. Closed Sundays and Mondays. Admission: $10; Members are free. For more information, call 561.279.8883 or visit www.spadymuseum.com.

###